Gary,

I just got back to the office. It was a beautiful day, very light winds, and the water level was very low. I've never seen it so low. We walked all over the place and I took lots of photos. I will send these out later this afternoon. We did not see any damage to the cap on the part that is normally above the water line. We were able to walk out on the rock over the former pits and we noted several small isolated spots where the geofabric was exposed. You will see what I mean when you see the photos. Daleel took pictures too and recorded the GPS location at each of these locations where we could see the geofabric.

Thanks,
Terry
